

Calflora

Calflora is Hiring!

The Calflora Database is a nonprofit organization dedicated to providing information about California plant biodiversity for use in education, research and conservation. Calflora is seeking a part-time "full-stack" developer who knows JAVA (GWT) and maybe Perl to support our main JAVA developer. We are engaged in test driven development, continuous integration and continuous deployment. First up: integrating with photo websites, displaying plant species distributions on Google maps, and adding social media features.

Please send your info to spprt@calflora.org by March 15, 2017.